AT CLEARWATER TO-DAY.

Quite a number of Republicans will eave for Clearwater this morning to join in the Republican demonstration. Col. J. R. Hallowell and Judge T. B. Wall will be the orators for the occasion, the former speaking in the afternoon and the latter at night. The candidates and many of the leading Republicans will take the early morning train on the Missouri Pacific, and expect to participate in another great rally. The meeting has been extensively advertised and it is thought that an immense crowd will be on hand to engage in the enthusiasm of the day.

RIGHT OF WAY WORK.

The parties employed by the city council to secure right of way for sub-mains and latterals report fair progress, not often finding any one who objects to giving the right of way freely and, in fact, glad to do so, and are waiting impatiently for the advantages that are to be derived from the sewer system. The leading trouble is to find property owners when they have time to make out the necessary papers and can settle the matter at once

A few there are, however, who have property in such a shape that they think they ought to have some money for the right of way.

WANTS MONEY.

A prominent man stated yesterday that he wanted to have a little interest in the coming election outside of patriotism, and as a result has money in the State Na-tional bank on the following terms:

Twenty-five dollars that Connecticut, New York, Indiana and California each go for Harrison; $25 that Cleveland does not get 5,000 plurality in New Jersey, and also in West Virginia, and $25 that Oregon gives more plurality for Harrison than New Jersey does for Cleveland, and $25 that he wins more than half the bets; $25 on Buckner, $25 on Boyle, $25 on Bentley,

MOVING HYDRANTS.

The water company have commenced work moving hydrants on Douglas avenue to conform to the curb and guttering. As "gentleman from Stafford" arese and is known Douglas avenue sidewalk is to be sixteen feet and the new curb and guttering calls for that width of walk. It also calls for the hydrants now about twelve feet out to be moved. They are being placed just inside the curb. The work and expense on the part of the company in an item, and the inconvenience to tropic will also be noticed, but Mr. Armsburg, superintendent, stated last evening that as uch of the work would be done at night as possible, in order to inconvenience the it? public as little as possible,

The work on curbing on Douglas will commence at Fifth avenue in a few days as soon as Market street is completed.

THE WHITE SLAVE.

The "White Slave," the latest play of that prolific writer, Mr. Bartley Campbell, was produced in the presence of a large andience in the Fourteenth street theatre last night, and was received with a running accompaniment of applause, which seemed to indicate that it is likely to preve a popular success. The story moves along very briskly with plenty of incidents and a most liberal allowance of "situation," which appear to be heartily enjoyed. The play was handsomely mounted and very well rendered.—Evening Post, N. Y., April 4.

AN EMPEROR'S OPINION.

The German Ruler on the American Soldler in the Civil War.

The emperor seems to appreciate in the highest manner the feats of our soldiers in the civil war. Not only did he seem to care about the subject, but he showed that he knew more about it than most he was a mere child. "Well," said the emperor, "I listened to a long course of letures on the princips battles of your war. Not only that, but every winter German officers gave sim-llar lectures which I attended."

I told the emperor that I was amazed to hear this, as in America we had rather an idea that the Germans looked on our war somewhat contemptuously and as scarcely worth serious professional study.
"On the contrary," replied the emperor,

"we are constantly going back to the examples set by your generals for illustra-tions of what should be done for our soldiers. Your army has led the way in a great many of the most important feat ures of modern warfare, and I can hardly exaggerate the debt of gratitude Ger many owes to your country in this partic

I asked the emperor if it was not true that Field Marshal Count Moltke, when once asked his opinion about our civil war, had replied contemptuously that he took no interest in the movement of armed mobs. "That," answered the emperor, in most emphatic tones, "Is most assuredly not true. This is a subject on which I have very well what he thinks about American soldiers and American officers. I am sure that such a silly speech as that never passed his lipa."

This was, of course, most gratifying

news; for it nailed a lie that has been re peated interminably against the grand old strategist who has just retired from the more active work of his profession. "Your war," said his majesty, "gave splendid examples of great marching spiencial examples of great marching power, and upon the important results that depend upon the power of troops to move rapidly. Then again the skill which your troops showed in rapidly throwing up earth works as soon as they reached the end of their day's march, before turning in for the night, was remarkable. This meant the saving of an immense number of lives and the holding of many a piece of lives and the holding of many a piece of the enemy's country. Then again," continued the emperor, with enthusiasm, "the rough and ready manner in which your men jumped right into the fight as soon as they reached the ground, not waiting for anything, but going at the enemy wherever he could be found, even though at the case of a love days want want. though at the end of a long days's march—that was splendid."—Poultney gelow's Interview in New York World.

The big shops in Paris have not formed a trust, but, as though by tacit consent, they work together to crowd the small dealers out of business. If two or three of the small establishments drop prices to gain trade, they are met by such a reduction of the small establishments. gain trace, they are met by such a reduc-tion on the part of their enemies that they are threatened with ruin and are gisd to get back to the former rates. One man, owning a small shop in the vicinity of a successful and wealthy rival, sought to avenge his wrongs a short time ago, and to a certain extent succeeded. On to avenge and to a certain extent succeeded. On several successive days he passed the big store with a concealed syringe in his pocket, and whenever the opportunity offered he squirted ink on the exposed in this way considerable white goods. In this way considerable fine stock was destroyed before the author of the mischief was discovered.—Chicago

Since the establishment of so many creameries and cheese factories throughout the country, cheese making in families has almost become a lost art. The night's and morning's milk may be put together in a large kettle and hrought almost to blood heat, when rennet is put in and stirred up with the milk. After that it must not be disturbed again until it has curdled and whey appears on the top and sides of the kettle. Dip this off carefully, so as not to break the curd and cause a whitish whey. This whey may be warmed and turned back to keep up the temperature until the separation of of the whey from the curd is complete, when it is all dipped off again and the hardened curd is cut from time to time into inch squares with a large knife to still further aid in the separation of the whey.

After this the whole is dipped into a coarse strainer cloth, spread in the cheese basket and placed over a tub to drain. It is then chopped in a chopping bowl or rubbed into small pieces and salted ready for the cheese hoops, when it is gently pressed until the whey is all expelled. A dried rennet is soaked in salt and water in a stone jar, and the amount required will depend on its strength and must be learned by experience. A tablespoonful to a gallon of milk is about the usual quantity. When on the shelf to dry the cheese must be rubbed dally with grease made from heated butter until it is cured. While a quite small fruit or cider press might be used, it would not be well indapted to the purpose, and a cheap one quantity. When on the shelf to dry the cheese must be rubbed daily with gresse made from heated butter until it is cured. While a quite small fruit or cider press might be used, it would not be well adapted to the purpose, and a cheap one made by a carpenter would be better.
